About us	The HPI d-school is part of the Hasso Plattner Institute for Digital Engineering at the University of Potsdam and one of Europe's leading educational centers for Design Thinking. Since 2007, we offer students practice-oriented certificate programs that can be completed alongside their regular studies, enabling them to gain additional qualifications and develop key future skills. In doing so, we collaborate with organizations from a wide range of industries to co-create user-centered products, services, business models, and strategies.
